Description: US Citizenship and Immigration Services is establishing a new agency-wide Workplace Violence Prevention Program, to include domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking affecting the workplace. The program incorporates the use of 5 specially trained multi-disciplinary threat assessment and management units, or Situational Advisory Teams (SATs). SATs are trained to intake and manage violence risk cases internal to an organization of approximately 40,000 personnel. SATs are comprised of approximately 32 assigned individuals (each SAT, 8 personnel) from the following disciplines: security, legal counsel, and employee relations. In anticipation of receiving specialized cases needing external consultation, USCIS seeks a tailored consultation from an external behavioral threat assessment professional. The purpose of this Task Order (TO) is to provide USCIS with a qualified behavioral threat assessment professional to consult on challenging violence risk cases upon request.

Description: One of USCIS' primary responsibilities is to administer and manage Application Support Centers (ASCs) and related operations. ASCs collect applicant biometric and biographical data (e.g., digital fingerprints, photographs, and signatures). the data is used to conduct criminal background checks prior to USCIS making a determination whether to grant immigration benefits to applicants. Additional support functions are likely as USCIS continues to grow and evolve. This procurement is a continuation of the Application Support Center (ASC) program established in 1997 which is currently under the Identity and Information Management Division (IIMD) with the USCIS Immigration Records and Identity Service (IRIS) Directorate of USCIS.

Description: USCIS has a requirement for a contractor to perform operational requirement analysis to improve inform technology and process. The contractor will perform requirement analysis to define requirements for a portfolio of IT and non-IT components. Develop and propose project requirements and user expectations for IT systems. Define, analyze, validate, and align stakeholder expectations with the contractor's proposed recommendations. Produce a requirements document that is actionable, measurable, testable, traceable, defined with sufficient details and relates to the overall organization mission. Completely describe systems in terms of functional and nonfunctional requirements and written in plain non-technical terms. Identify any discrepancies and duplication of work in daily operations. Document the current architecture and highlight system dependencies. Document which components of an IT system contribute to which program mission within an organization. Document required software and hardware needs for each system within an organization. Carry out a stakeholder analysis to capture data from product owners but not rely on these interviews to develop the requirement analysis document. The anticipated strategy will be to utilize the VETS 2 contract vehicle.

Description: USCIS has a requirement to procure program management and records management support services to include correspondence management, data collection, fee collection, and file operations support. Support services are required for the California, Vermont, Nebraska, Texas, and Potomac Service Center locations. The Service Center Operations Directorate is currently undergoing a transformation from a paper-based business model to be a more electronic and digital program. Over the course of this requirement, it is anticipated the physical footprint at some centers will dramatically reduce throughout performance. This requirement supports a transition period for USCIS as certain functions within task areas will either become obsolete or will no longer require contractor support. This transition is reflected in the significant reduction of contractor FTEs expected to occur between the base period and final day of performance. This requirement is not a consolidated effort.

Update 10/17/2022 – Updated CO and estimated RFQ release date.

Description: USCIS is in the early planning states for the re-competition of the existing Cloud Hosting BPA. It is anticipated that USCIS will award a single-award BPA utilizing the GSA Federal Supply Schedule. USCIS, Office of Information Technology (OIT) has a continued requirement for FedRamp Commercial Cloud Services, specifically Infrastructure as a Service (IaaS), Platform as a Service (PaaS), and Software as a Service (SaaS) Commercial Cloud Hosting Services (CCHS). This requirement supports the delivery of Continuous Integration/Continuous Delivery (CI/CD) DevOps methodologies for building quality software that is developed, built, tested and implemented into production quickly and in rapid succession using a CI/CD pipeline. USCIS programs and systems supported by this requirement can serve both public and private stakeholders and can range broadly in terms of security, size, complexity and importance.
